This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at `http://books.google.com/`

M. adds.
27 d. 10.

6000450720

Days.

M. adds. 27 d. 10

R W Bodle

1886

BE/- 1160
30_ e 5-3

Composite Photography

APPLIED TO

THE PORTRAITS OF SHAKESPEARE

BY

WALTER ROGERS FURNESS

FIFTY COPIES PRINTED

PHILADELPHIA
ROBERT M. LINDSAY
1885

PREFACE

IN Mr FRANCIS GALTON'S interesting Inquiries into Human Faculty there is a Chapter on what is termed "Composite Photographs," by which name is designated the final photograph obtained from the exposure to the same sensitized plate of a series of human faces. A photograph thus "composed" presents, according to Mr Galton's ingenious theory, the face typical of the group. It was while reading this Chapter that the idea occurred to me of trying, by a similar process, to obtain a typical portrait of SHAKESPEARE.

It is not to be supposed that I felt at all sanguine of obtaining a satisfactory result.

The essential element for success, namely, identity of position in the originals, was not to be counted on; all that I could hope for, from this somewhat fanciful experiment, would be, if there be any truth at all in Mr Galton's theory, a reflex, very shadowy at best, of the most characteristic features in the alleged portraits of Shakespeare. At any rate the experiment seemed worth trying, and if it satisfies no one it has at least interested me.

Under the guidance of my Father and of Mr Norris, the best living authority on the Portraits of Shakespeare, to both of whom I here gladly express my affectionate and respectful thanks, I selected nine portraits supposed to have the best authenticated pedigrees, including the Stratford Bust and the Death Mask. In six of these the face is turned to the left of the spectator, at nearly the same angle; in the remaining three it is turned in an opposite direction.

The first step was to reduce these portraits, by Photography, to the same size. That size was determined by the distance, in exactest measurement, between the eyes and the mouth. The photographs thus obtained were attached to a board by four pins, with the eyes and mouths superposed as accurately as possible by adjustment in a frame across which were stretched two intersecting fine silk threads, one passing horizontally through the line of the eyes, the other vertically through the centre of the forehead and the middle of the upper lip.

Upon exposing each portrait to the sensitized plate for the same number of seconds, namely three, I found that the more marked outline of the Stratford Bust unduly predominated, not so much from the character of the features themselves, as from the fact that the photograph was a reproduction of a statue, and conversely the Chandos Portrait, dim and dark, failed to express itself in the composite. I was therefore obliged to apportion the exposure to the sensitized plate, allotting four seconds to the Chandos Portrait, two seconds to the Stratford Bust, and three seconds to each of the other four portraits.

For the like cause in the second group it was found on trial, that one and one-half seconds had to be given to the Death Mask, and seven seconds to each of the other Portraits.

Merely by way of experiment, three minor Composites were made by combining in pairs those portraits which seemed to bear to each other the closest resemblance, viz.: the Chandos and the Jansen; the Chandos and the Droeshout; the Felton Portrait and the Stratford Bust.

My thanks are due to the skill and experience of Mr W. Curtis Taylor.

I cannot but think that the photographs on the following pages reveal a similarity of likeness running through portraits which at first sight present a quite dissimilar character.

W. R. F.

April, 1885.

There has been an unavoidable delay in obtaining the paper for these photographs, and in the meantime it has occurred to Mr W. Curtis Taylor, out of the experience gained in making these negatives with me, to apply "Composite Photography" to the portraits of Washington, and the interest manifested by the public in his success has given me no little encouragement.

W. R. F.

June, 1885.

A LIST OF THE PORTRAITS.

FACE TURNED TO THE LEFT.

CHANDOS PORTRAIT. MEZZOTINT BY SAMUEL COUSINS. INDIA PAPER PROOF. PUBLISHED BY THE SHAKESPEARE SOCIETY, 1849.

DROESHOUT PORTRAIT. PHOTO-LITHOGRAPH. PUBLISHED BY DAY & SONS, APRIL 9TH, 1864.

JANSEN PORTRAIT. ENGRAVED BY CHARLES TURNER. PUBLISHED BY ROBERT TRIPHOOK, JAN. 1ST, 1824.

STRATFORD PORTRAIT. PHOTOGRAPHED FROM ORIGINAL BY CUNDALL, DOWNES & CO.

FELTON PORTRAIT. ENGRAVED BY T. TROTTER. PUBLISHED BY WM. RICHARDSON, NOV. 1ST, 1794.

STRATFORD BUST. PHOTOGRAPHED FROM ORIGINAL BY TRUPP, BIRMINGHAM.

FACE TURNED TO THE RIGHT.

MARSHALL'S COPY OF THE DROESHOUT PORTRAIT. INDIA PAPER PROOF. PUBLISHED BY ROBERT THIPHOOK, 1824.

ASHBOURNE PORTRAIT. ENGRAVED BY G. F. STORM. JAN. 1ST, 1848.

DEATH MASK. PHOTOGRAPH OF ORIGINAL.

Composite

Chandos, Droeshout, Jansen, Stratford,

Felton, Bust

Composite Portrait

of the Chandos and the Jansen

Portrait

Composite Portrait

of the

Chandos and the Droeshout

Portraits

Composite Portrait

of the

Felton Portrait and the Stratford Bust

SHAKESPEARE.

Composite

Marshall's Droeshout, Ashbourne,

Death Mask

Chandos Portrait

Droeshout Portrait

SHAKESPEARE.

Jansen Portrait

Stratford Portrait

Felton Portrait

Guil Shakspeare
1597

Stratford Bust

Marshall's Copy

of the Droeshout Portrait

Ashbourne Portrait

Death Mask